THE FIRE
IS RED

Watching you is the most beautiful gift for me that I think like you. We kiss your neck. From the pungent smell of your sweat, I realize how you show masculinity to me. This is the way a man looks at another man and we appreciate it. We appreciate it. For the gift of this masculine character. We all know our knowledge and insight in a circle of character. A ring made of moonlight. In the dark we touch our furry limbs and bodies. Under the moonlight. We are the guard

Athis love may be sacred to us. That's why we all think. Great men have always loved their homosexuality to complete the lunar cycle, just like our ancestors who always put the greatness of man at the forefront. And they taught us to maintain our masculine appearance from childhood. And to love men. We love each other.

A close-up photograph of a person's hands against a dark, textured background. The right hand is holding a small, black, curved object, possibly a piece of jewelry or a small tool. A red laser line points from the text box to the object. The left hand is resting on the right forearm. The lighting is dramatic, highlighting the skin and the object.
